

Biographie

Acoustic Instinct is a Beatbox Duo from South West Germany. There isn't a single sound Paul Brenning and Julian Knörzer can't imitate with their mouth and voice. Individual tone colours round out their vocal percussions of drum-sounds, instrumentals and everyday sounds. On stage, all of this brings about a fascinating mixture of human beatboxing, a cappella singing, play, comedy and the art of improvisation.

Acoustic Instinct were originally founded as a trio in 2005, and have ever since been working with various artists, choirs and bands; local as well as foreign. Together with 'Jazzchor Freiburg' they have already toured Japan and South Korea three times.

In 2007 they were awarded the 'Zelt-Musik-Festival' Prize and also won the 2007 Audience Award in an A Cappella Competition by Hypo Vereinsbank.

The Duo stands out due to their sense for locality and allows the audience to become a part of their performance. By the joy of improvisation and spontaneity of the artists every show becomes a unique listening experience of the highest quality.

Music – without instrumental sounds – developed from the "Acoustic Instinct".
